

Capital Christian has been supporting Nick and his family since 2005, when they were sent to Tanzania. They were there until 2016, when the Lord began pulling on their hearts to go to the Arab world, into creative access countries. They spent a year in Cairo with LiveDead learning Arabic, then moved to North Africa, where they have been since 2018. There they operate under a consulting business which allows them to enter the business consulting relationship by talking about the parable of the talents, demonstrating to Muslims that there are sound business principles in the Holy Book of Christianity. Their business provides training related to business, leadership, and entrepreneurship. In addition, they focus their ministry towards millennials, 20/30-somethings that are passionate about activism and change. Through their conversations with these young people, the Stuvus have the opportunity to talk about Jesus, and have seen Jesus impact the lives of young people in Tunisia. Currently, they are focusing on building a community for those who have given their lives to Christ, since many who are initially interested revert back to their Muslim culture once they are married and start having children. The Stuvus are working to expand their business and ministry impact to develop Christian community in the country where they serve. Your support makes this possible!

Nick is married to his wife Kim, and they have two adult children: Alexandra (20), and Alec (18).

Pray for the Stuvus:

1. Normally, our son would be at boarding school in Kenya (He is moving into his Sr year of high school). The current global situation has prevented the school from welcoming students back to campus. Naturally, this time period has been difficult in terms of finding good outlets for him socially, physically and spiritually.
  2. We also have teammates who are essentially stranded in Jordan and stranded in the states. The spread of the virus in the states has caused the local government to prevent any Americans from entering the country, regardless if they have been in the states during this time frame or not. We have much work to do and it is becoming difficult to move forward without them here.
